Tencent Holdings (0700.HK)

Resilient Core & Strong CF Support AI Transformation Investment

CITI'S TAKE

We reiterate our Buy rating on Tencent with HK$787 TP and top-pick status. While Tencent may not be a first mover in the AI race, it has a proven history of entering markets later than industry incumbents and ultimately emerging as a leader, as demonstrated in gaming, social networking and payment. While new AI investment is expected to more than double in 2026, resulting in possible slower profit growth than revs growth, we expect this to be short-term and believe over time the increased profits from its resilient core business will offset the AI spend that enable Tencent to resume delivering profit growing faster than revs. We believe upcoming release of HY3.0 model and the new agentic AI in WeChat will enhance Tencent's positioning to ride on the "OpenClaw" moment, which has fostered a proliferation of AI agents that operating/executing through a decentralized network ecosystem similar to WeChat's Mini Program.

AI investment & near-term profit growth- Mgmt guided 2026 investment in new AI products to more than double from Rmb18bn (which we reconcile ~4% of total cost and expenses) in 2025 and view this cost as more front-loaded investment where overtime will translate to future monetization and become profitable. Mgmt does not rule out the possibility that revs growth is likely to be grow faster than profit (we interpret as short-term) though also highlighted that increased profits from existing business should more than cover incremental investment in these new AI products. We model 2026 revs/GP/adj. OP to +8.6%/9.3%/4.3% yoy, reflecting higher AI expenses and COGS despite higher GPM from VAS and ads.

Resilient core strength – Mgmt sounded confident that its key franchises like communication tools, games, and fintech remain resilient to the threat of AI due to its network effect, regulatory environment, and games benefitting from AI.

New AI products & model and AI-enhanced core businesses– While Tencent might not be a first mover in LLM, it was early in adopting and applying AI into its core gaming and marketing services business that have proven to support reaccelerated growth and faster-than-industry growth in games and ad revs past 1-2 years. New HY3.0 is expected to be released in April and next-gen agentic services in Weixin is also under-development, which could serve as important catalyst in coming months. All existing businesses and new AI products should also benefit from the enhanced iteration and model quality of HY3.0.

Tencent's overall AI strategy

Resilient franchise in age of AI

Management believes there are several criteria for product and service resilience to AI, including network effects, depth and value added along the supply chain, regulatory environment and license requirements, scarcity and unique resource such as physical property or intellectual property, low take rate compared to value provided or switching cost and access to private and public data.

Tencent believes its key franchise possess a lot of resilience criteria and remains highly defensible. For communications, Tencent saw great network effect with access to internal data. For games, Tencent operates multi-player games with massive network effect. Meanwhile, management believes AI is currently not capable of creating innovative gameplay-centric games due to difficulty in in-game balance and generate consistent outcome. For fintech, since it is heavily regulated and licensed, in partnership with partner banks, this may also create resilience for Tencent's fintech products and services.

Strengthening core business with AI

During early stage, Tencent's priority for AI is to be a pioneer in using AI to reinforce its core business. Tencent believes in each core business, the company is the leader domestically and globally in leveraging AI to strengthen and accelerate growth. Its use of AI is showing positive initial results with increasing user engagement and revenue trends:

- Games: generative AI has accelerated in-game content production speed and scale. Furthermore, multimodal capabilities also enable virtual teammates in PVP games to provide coaching and support, and LLMs to power realistic NPCs in PVE games, while generative AI also facilitates new user acquisition and existing user retention.

- Marketing services: Tencent has operated scaled-up foundation model for matching relevant ads with receptive users that enables higher ad conversions, resulting in better user experience at equivalent ad load especially on Video Accounts. Generative AI facilitates advertisers to create more ads, more efficiently and with greater user relevance. AI also enabled automated ad targeting, bidding and placement with AIM+ solution to improve advertiser return on marketing investments.

- Video Accounts: Through long-sequence large model, this enhances intelligence of content recommendation, boosting user growth, user engagement and content distribution. Currently Video Accounts ranked #2 by short video service DAU in China with fastest growth rate by total time spent.

- Digital content: AI helps improve production efficiency such as automated frame generation for anime, while provide intelligent recommendation and efficient user discovery for users, videos, and literature.

- Enterprise SaaS: Tencent provides useful AI tools such as AI Delegate for generating meeting minutes in Tencent Meeting and intelligent summaries of customer service history in WeCom. Currently Tencent Meeting represents the top video conference software by user time and revenue in China and WeCom represents #1 CRM software by revenues in China.

- Fintech: Management believes lightweight fintech AI models enhance credit scoring process to determine loan approval more intelligently and facilitate fraud detection. Tencent's lending products have demonstrated better credit quality and lower non-performing loan rate in 2025.

Overall, management believes ecosystem and cross-platform capabilities represents the core strength for Tencent by adopting its AI strategies together with connection of product and orchestration capabilities.

New AI capabilities and product development

Leveraging its strengthened core businesses, Tencent continues to add development of new AI capabilities and products to its priorities which may unlock new opportunities and further differentiate its core business:

- Foundation models: Tencent adopts a combination of strong foundation models with configuring for core use cases such as chat bot, coding, multimodal and agentic applications. While Tencent is not the first mover in LLM, the company has recently revamped team and processes, improved data quality and rebuilt infrastructure for pre-training and reinforcement learning which enable Tencent to iterate more intelligent models more rapidly. Tencent also shared that HY 3.0 is now in internal testing aiming to provide substantial improvement over HY 2.0. Tencent will progressively make HY 3.0 available externally starting from Apr. Management also believes they are an early mover in multimodalities and an industry leader in areas such as 3D, text to image, and world models leveraging proprietary data and abundant use cases.

- Yuanbao AI chatbot: Yuanbao has served as information aggregators, which is currently most overlapped with search use cases. Yuanbao has progressively upgraded its capabilities and seeks user breakout opportunities for its own AI chat app. Yuanbao also rapidly iterates user experience through better search integration, improved speech recognition, easier access to multimodal capabilities. With HY 3.0 deployment, the core experience of Yuanbao will be further improved.

- Weixin AI: Tencent will embed AI across the Weixin ecosystem to enhance user experience, spanning social interactions, information retrieval and analysis, content consumption, merchandise recommendations, and customer service. Weixin AI aims to become the next generation agentic services in Weixin to connect users with extensive Mini Program content, social and payment ecosystem. Weixin AI will also benefit from HY's increasing intelligence in future as well, with agent addition to Weixin to boost ecosystem activity and generate incremental revenue itself.

- Productivity AI: Tencent has introduced a suite of autonomous AI agent products and tools such as WorkBuddy and Qclaw, along with upgraded agent-related infrastructure including Tencent Cloud Lighthouse and AI Agent Security Sandbox to retrieve information, coordinate workflow and perform actions across applications. Such tools will transform AI from passive chatbots to active agents to translate intelligence directly into deliverables through autonomous workflows and continuous task execution. These tools will also combine with Tencent's leading communication platforms to enable users to command multiple agents directly from the chat interface and leverage the diverse content ecosystem and extensive merchant and developer network. Users can conveniently invoke skills from SkillHub and leverage security infrastructure from Tencent Cloud.

  – Management believes Claw likely represents an exciting concept to illustrate a decentralized model for how AI works. This also represents continued evolvement in internet era from browser, search engine to mobile applications and potentially AI agents in future. With differentiating models specializing in different kinds of activities such as chatbots, coding and multimodal, Claw may potentially open up a completely decentralized regime with different companies providing their own Claw based on all kinds of different models supported by cloud infrastructure at unique value system. Management saw a lot of opportunities in building the products to cater to people's needs and win their interest.

With Tencent's unique value proposition, management believes the company is highly suitable for the agentic adoption and deployment of Claw. For instance, Tencent has the capabilities across PC, mobile, and cloud with several centralized apps and decentralized ecosystems, especially the Mini Program ecosystem, which may be further empowered with Tencent's agent capabilities. Management also believes there won't become a monopoly situation for Claw competition as consumers may need to pick competing products based on price-performance curve.

Commitment in AI strategic investments

Total costs and expenses for new AI products reached Rmb7bn in 4Q25 and Rmb18bn in 2025. These include talent, data, training for HY, inference and marketing for Yuanbao while exclude AI initiatives supporting existing products and services and purchase of GPU for external use in Tencent Cloud.

Management highlighted that they have been staffing up quite aggressively to source talents from the world and China. For the Hunyuan team, management will continue to make selective hires and build the right culture for the team.

Tencent also expects to double the investments in new AI products in 2026. With increased profit from existing business, management expects this should more than cover incremental investments in these new AI products. During the transformational period, management believe these substantial front-loaded investments are similar as capex or investments in affiliates in nature and should be excluded or viewed separately from the profit generated by the existing biz.

Management emphasized that it is possible for its revenue to grow faster than profit in 2026 due to stepped up investments in AI products and positive ROI on both existing businesses and new AI products. Management is comfortable with such outcome as these new AI products represent an opportunity to expand its footprint and deliver new values for users.

Tencent Cloud

Evergreen business through strategic investment

Tencent has started to focus on high quality cloud revenue growth in 2022, and restructure to focus on higher margin business, leading to breakeven for Tencent Cloud in 2024. During 2025, Tencent Cloud revenue grew at an improving rate and delivered Rmb5bn adjusted operating profit despite constrained availability of GPUs and decision to prioritize internal AI services.

With a better pricing environment, especially for memory and CPU, strong AI demand and overseas expansion, management expects external cloud service revenues to grow robustly in 2026, driving Tencent Cloud to generate sustainable revenue stream and improving margin trajectory as an evergreen business.

With demand surge in AI compute, management expects higher demand not only on GPU, DRAM and HBM, but also CPU, regular RAM, SSD, hard disk drive during agentic tool and software execution. With suppliers prioritizing bigger and more regular customers during resource constraints, Tencent Cloud as a hyperscaler could secure steady supplies for these materials. When the demand picks-up, the industry as a whole will likely have no choice but to pass through higher prices.

That said, Tencent will continue to focus on deliver more value through enrichment and bundling into PaaS or SaaS that may bring best pricing and higher margins.

Online Games

Domestic games +15% yoy and international games +32% yoy

In 4Q25, domestic game revenues grew by 15% yoy to Rmb38.2bn, primarily driven by Delta Force contribution, increased revenues from Valorant franchise and incremental revenue contribution from Wuthering Waves.

In 4Q25, international game revenues grew by 32% yoy to Rmb21.1bn or +31% on constant currency basis, mainly due to higher revenues from Supercell's games and PUBG Mobile as well as incremental revenue contribution from Wuthering Waves.

Mgmt does not believe AI will be disruptive on video gaming

Management highlighted that during Game Developers Conference (GDC) last week, the majority of presentations focused on how to use AI to upgrade content within existing games to accelerate content creation and improve content quality within games. However, there seems to be capability to create games completely from scratch using AI. Moreover, Tencent's Interactive Entertainment Group (IEG) has actively participated in AI deployment in terms of graphics, gameplay, and user companionship.

With a potential of oversupply of new game offerings, Tencent would rather focus on making, extending, and rendering evergreen titles to achieve optimal balance in game development and publishing strategy.

Overall, with AI potentially brining more leisure time for consumers, online gaming sector is likely a beneficiary from the demand side. With the availability of new AI tools to new developers, this may favor developers with better use of these tools to increase production amount and extend game life cycles which is already happening currently. AI likely speed up innovation and iterate more new experience into existing and new games.

Tailwind on app store service fee changes

With recent service fee reduction by Apple's iOS platform in China, management is happy to see the actual development that has taken effect in the last few days. With a higher mix of self-developed and self-published games within online game revenues, Tencent may enjoy a better flow-through with revenue share based on gross revenue. That said, Tencent may also reinvest such incremental profit stream into new AI product development. Along with the service fee reduction, management saw the importance to effectively offer developers at the same service fee structure equivalent with or close to elsewhere in the world. Therefore, management believes it would become an inevitable downward trend in China and rest of world.

Marketing Services updates

Marketing Services recorded growth of 17% year-on-year in the fourth quarter to RMB 41 billion, primarily driven by significant AI-powered upgrades to its adtech. The advertising business saw rapid growth from the Internet Services and Local Services categories. This was complemented by increased marketing spend from Mini Game and Mini Drama studios, driven by higher consumer engagement. However, there was slower performance in the eCommerce category, where platforms temporarily shifted budgets to subsidies, and in the Financial Services category, which was impacted by policy changes affecting online lending.

Fintech and Business Services business updates

The FinTech and Business Services segment delivered revenue growing 8% year-on-year to RMB 61 billion in 4Q25, primarily driven by strong results in Wealth Management, and Commercial Payment Services, which maintained positive transaction volume growth. Business Services revenue growth accelerated to 22% year-on-year, reflecting higher cloud services revenues across domestic and international markets, including revenues for AI-related services, as well as higher eCommerce technology service fees, mainly arising from growth in Mini Shops GMV.

We reiterate our Buy rating on Tencent with HK$787 TP and top-pick status.

While new AI investment is expected to be more than doubling in 2026, resulting possible slower profit growth than revs growth, we expect this to be short term and believe that over time, the increased profits from its resilient core business will offset the AI spend that enables Tencent to resume delivering profit growth faster than revs. We believe upcoming release of HY3.0 model and the new agentic AI in WeChat will enhance Tencent's positioning to ride on the "OpenClaw" moment, which has fostered a proliferation of AI agents that operating/executing through a decentralized network ecosystem similar to WeChat's Mini Program. We believe Tencent remains one of the AI plays for China.

Tencent Holdings

Company description

Founded in 1998, Tencent is a leading Internet company in China engaged in multiple business lines including online games, social networking services, online advertising, and mobile value-added services. It has extended its leadership in PC over to mobile Internet with Mobile QQ and Weixin/WeChat. The company was listed on the main board of Hong Kong Stock Exchange in June 2004.

Investment strategy

We rate Tencent shares as Buy. We are positive on Tencent's overall strategic direction based on its mobile open platform initiatives that positions it to capture the significant opportunities in China's mobile Internet growth over the next few years. Leveraging off its sticky, integrated mobile user platform on WeChat, Tencent should be able to drive earnings growth by monetizing its strengths in mobile advertising, mobile gaming, and mobile payments.

Valuation

Our target price of HK$787 is based on a SOTP approach, which implies 23.0x 2026E and ~20.5x 2027E P/E. Our SOTP is based on the following: 1) Online games – We apply a 12x P/E to our 2027 estimated games net profit of Rmb134bn and yield a valuation of HK$193 per share, or 24% of our target price; 2) Online advertising – We apply a 22x P/E to our 2027 estimated ads profit of Rmb82bn which yields a valuation of HK$217 per share, or 28% of our target price; 3) Social network – While we attribute the non-gaming revs (community platform revs) as overall social network revs, given the WeChat, QQ, and other Tencent apps, we apply a 25x P/E to the estimated profit of Rmb63bn and yield a valuation of HK$188 per share, or 24% of our target price; 4) Fintech – We apply a 15x P/E to our estimated profit of Rmb48bn and yield a valuation of HK$87 per share, or 11% of our target price; 5) Cloud/business services – We apply a 5x P/S (average of China peers) to our 2027 estimated Business services revs of Rmb70bn, which yields a valuation of HK$42 per share, or 5% of our target price; 6) Investment portfolio – We apply a 30% discount to the equity stake in the publicly listed investment portfolio which implies HK$61/share.

Risks

Downside risks that could prevent the Tencent shares from reaching our target price include: i) a faster-than-expected revenue slowdown in core PC games; ii) unsuccessful launches of new mobile games; iii) a decline of Honor of Kings ranking and momentum; iv) a further slowdown in China's economy, which might negatively affect advertising demand; and v) a change in the regulatory environment.

Like all Firm employees, analysts receive compensation that is impacted by overall Firm profitability which includes investment banking, sales and trading, and principal trading revenues. Citi Research Global Fundamental Coverage (Neutral=Hold)	60%	32%	8%	37%	47%	16%

Guide to Citi Research Fundamental Research Investment Ratings:
Citi Research stock recommendations include an investment rating and an optional risk rating to highlight high risk stocks. Risk rating takes into account both price volatility and fundamental criteria. Stocks will either have no risk rating or a High risk rating assigned.
Investment Ratings: Citi Research investment ratings are Buy, Neutral and Sell. Our ratings are a function of analyst expectations of expected total return ("ETR") and risk. ETR is the sum of the forecast price appreciation (or depreciation) plus the dividend yield for a stock within the next 12 months. The target price is based on a 12 month time horizon. The Investment rating definitions are: Buy (1) ETR of 15% or more or 25% or more for High risk stocks; and Sell (3) for negative ETR. Any covered stock not assigned a Buy or a Sell is a Neutral (2). For stocks rated Neutral (2), if an analyst believes that there are insufficient valuation drivers and/or investment catalysts to derive a positive or negative investment view, they may elect with the approval of Citi Research management not to assign a target price and, thus, not derive an ETR. Citi Research may suspend its rating and target price and assign “Rating Suspended” status for regulatory and/or internal policy reasons. Citi Research may also suspend its rating and target price and assign "Under Review" status for other exceptional circumstances (e.g. lack of information critical to the analyst's thesis, trading suspension) affecting the company and/or trading in the company's securities. In both such situations, the rating and target price will show as “—“ and “-“ respectively in the rating history price chart. Prior to 11 April 2022 Citi Research assigned “Under Review” status to both situations and prior to 11 Nov 2020 only in exceptional circumstances. As soon as practically possible, the analyst will publish a note re-establishing a rating and investment thesis. Investment ratings are determined by the ranges described above at the time of initiation of coverage, a change in investment and/or risk rating, or a change in target price (subject to limited management discretion). At times, the expected total returns may fall outside of these ranges because of market price movements and/or other short-term volatility or trading patterns. Such interim deviations will be permitted but will become subject to review by Research Management. Your decision to buy or sell a security should be based upon your personal investment objectives and should be made only after evaluating the stock's expected performance and risk.

Catalyst Watch/Short Term Views (“STV”) Ratings Disclosure:
Catalyst Watch and STV Upside/Downside calls: Citi Research may also include a Catalyst Watch or STV Upside or Downside call to indicate the analyst expects the share price to rise (fall) in absolute terms over a specified period of 30 or 90 days in reaction to one or more specific near-term catalysts or events impacting the company or the market. A Catalyst Watch will be published when Analyst confidence is high that an impact to share price will occur; it will be a STV when confidence level is moderate. A Catalyst Watch or STV Upside/Downside call will automatically expire at the end of the specified 30/90 day period. The Catalyst Watch will also be automatically removed if share price performance (calculated at market close) exceeds 15% against the direction of the call (unless over-ridden by the analyst). The analyst may also remove a Catalyst Watch or STV call prior to the end of the specified period in a published research note. A Catalyst Watch/STV Upside or Downside call may be different from and does not affect a stock’s fundamental equity rating, which reflects a longer-term total absolute return expectation. For purposes of FINRA ratings-distribution-disclosure rules, a Catalyst Watch/STV Upside call corresponds to a buy recommendation and a Catalyst Watch/STV Downside call corresponds to a sell recommendation. Any stock not assigned to a Catalyst Watch Upside, Catalyst Watch Downside, STV Upside, or STV Downside call is considered Catalyst Watch/STV No View. For purposes of FINRA ratings distribution-disclosure rules, we correspond Catalyst Watch/STV No View to Hold in our ratings distribution table for our Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside rating system. However, we reiterate that we do not consider No View to be a recommendation. For all Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside calls, risk exists that the catalyst(s) and associated share-price movement will not materialize as expected.
